

An Inventory of Resources for Cancer Control and Prevention on Guam

Prepared for the
Guam Department of Public Health and Social Services
Comprehensive Cancer Control Program by
Health Partners, L.L.C.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This inventory of existing resources for cancer prevention and control on Guam was developed by Health Partners, L.L.C. for the Guam Department of Health and Human Services Comprehensive Cancer Control Program, through a grant from the US Department of Health and Human Services Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (Grant #). Dr. Annette M. David of Health Partners, L.L.C. conceptualized and developed the survey methodology used to collect information, and served as the Technical Writer/Author for this publication. Ms. Jeanine Pacson was the Research Assistant for this project, responsible for data collection and data entry.

Ms. Rose Zabala, DPHSS, provided oversight and guidance for the project. Ms. Cerina Y. Mariano, Program Coordinator for the DPHSS Comprehensive Cancer Control Program, provided assistance in identifying survey participants and coordinating communications with participants.

Health Partners, L.L.C. acknowledges with appreciation the individuals representing the various agencies, institutions and establishments making up the inventory who took time from their busy schedules to complete the survey instrument and to respond to additional queries.

INTRODUCTION

Guam endures a significant burden from cancer. Over the past decades, cancer has risen in prevalence and currently is the second highest cause of mortality on the island. The health burden from what is often a chronic and disabling condition is compounded by the economic costs of cancer treatment and care.

The Guam Department of Public Health and Social Services (DPHSS) is the designated lead agency responsible for addressing the problem of cancer. In recent years, the DPHSS Comprehensive Cancer Control Program initiated partnerships with other stakeholders in the community to build the island's capacity to prevent and control this major cause of mortality and morbidity. To date, accomplishments include the formation of a community Cancer Control Coalition and the development of a Comprehensive Cancer Control Master Plan for the island.

As part of the initial needs assessment, the coalition recognized the importance of identifying and mapping out existing cancer prevention and control resources within the island. This inventory represents a systematic effort to collect and collate information on available services and expertise relevant to cancer prevention and control. It is anticipated that this inventory will serve as a valuable resource for cancer prevention/control program planners, service providers and for cancer patients and their families.

Because the availability of health services and resources is often dynamic, this inventory should be viewed as a "living document" that may change over time. To facilitate the incorporation of new information and the deletion of obsolete data, the publication is intentionally created in hard copy as a binder. An electronic database accompanying the publication should be updated as necessary to reflect the changes in the distribution and availability of community resources to combat cancer.

The contents of this inventory reflect the best efforts of Health Partners, L.L.C. to assimilate and organize information provided by the various agencies, institutions, establishments and individuals who responded to an island-wide survey. The survey was voluntary; hence only those entities that participated are represented in the publication.

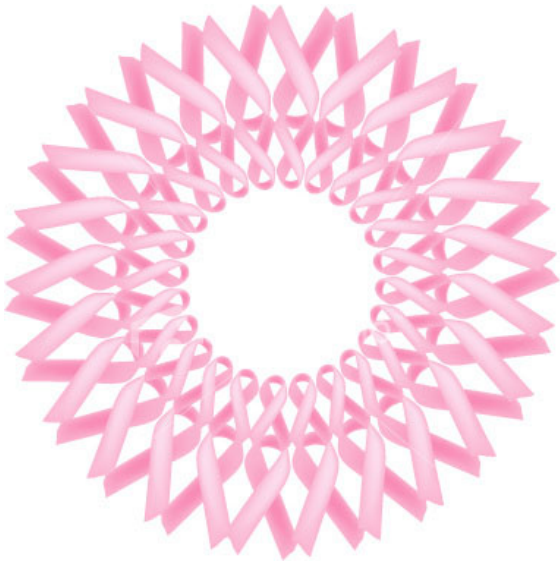

METHODOLOGY

After discussions with the DPHSS Comprehensive Cancer Control program staff, Health Partners, L.L.C. developed a survey instrument to capture the data required for the cancer prevention and control asset inventory. A copy of the final survey instrument is included in the Appendix. A systematic search for potential providers of cancer prevention and control services was done using the Yellow Pages of the both phone books used on Guam, as well as relevant directories of health professionals such as that published by the Guam Medical Society. DPHSS program staff and staff from organizations working in the area of cancer control were queried regarding possible survey participants. The survey instrument also included a question on other agencies/groups/organizations on Guam providing services to cancer patients. All suggested participants were followed up.

Survey forms were distributed by fax, e-mail or in person. Follow-up phone calls and visits were conducted to maximize the response rate. All survey participants were informed at the outset of the nature and purpose of the survey. Responses were all voluntary.

An electronic database was developed using Microsoft Excel to record entries in submitted survey forms. The data collected were used to create information sheets in hard copy that were collated into a binder.

All information provided by the survey respondents was assumed to be valid. A separate, objective attempt to validate the data was not conducted. If responses were unclear, phone calls were made to the individual completing the survey form for clarification.
